SPEAKER BIOGRAPHY

Howard B. Miller, JAMS - Howard B. Miller is a JAMS mediator and arbitrator, and a Fellow of the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators (FCIArb). He is a past president of the State Bar of California, and a former professor of law at the University of Southern California Gould School of Law. Mr. Miller has had an extensive litigation career, representing plaintiffs and defendants in all areas of civil litigation. Because of his experience representing diverse clients, from individuals to small businesses, and being on the boards of and representing public companies, he has a rare perspective from having been on all sides of conflicts and disputes. For the past 16 years, he has evaluated, managed and handled major cases in all areas of intellectual property, including copyright and entertainment, trademarks and trade secrets and patent litigation. He also has extensive experience in complex commercial litigation; consumer class actions; and real estate litigation, transactions and financing, as well as environmental law.
