Her practice focuses heavily on insurance recovery: advising and litigating on behalf of business, government, and individual policyholders in coverage disputes with their insurers. She is experienced in the start-to-finish prosecution of claims under the full range of commercial-line policies, including commercial general liability, management liability/D&O, employment practices liability, professional liability, and business property. Susannah is among the most experienced policyholder lawyers in the Northwest for complex “long tail” claims—securing coverage for environmental property damage and asbestos bodily injury liabilities resulting from business operations occurring decades ago.
