AGENDA

12:00 PM Introduction

12:10 PM Presentation: ‘Building a Location-Independent Law Practice - See the World and Work From Anywhere’, by Devon Thurtle Anderson, Skepsis Technologies LLC and Sea-Tech Systems

Whether your professional goals have you working remotely from a week-long deposition in Florida, or permanently from a sailboat in the middle of the Pacific, building a location-independent firm takes some basic strategic planning and know-how. In this presentation, we’ll cover some of the strategies and tools you’ll need to make your law practice location-independent, including:

- Choosing Software
- Handling Phone Calls
- Working with Staff
- Accessing (and Budgeting for) Internet
- Automation

SPEAKER BIOGRAPHY

Devon Thurtle Anderson, Skepsis Technologies LLC and Sea-Tech Systems - Devon is the CEO of Skepsis Technologies, a company that provides bookkeeping, virtual assistant, and software selection services for attorneys. She is also the CFO of Sea-Tech Systems, which provides on-grid and off-grid communications solutions to full-time digital nomads. Devon has been working remotely - from full-time depositions in California, to officing on her boat as she and her family traveled the Pacific, to seeing the country by RV - for nearly 10 years. Prior to establishing Skepsis and Sea-Tech, Devon managed and grew two successful law firms, with her own practice focusing on complex commercial litigation in the construction and insurance industries.
