SPEAKER BIOGRAPHY

Aaron Rocke, Rocke Law Group - Aaron is the managing partner of Rocke Law Group. He advises businesses and nonprofit organizations on employment and commercial relationships. He represents management and key employees, and has litigated cases in state and federal courts with successful verdicts and appeals, including successful appeals to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals and the Washington State Court of Appeals and Supreme Court.

In giving back, Aaron has taught lawyers and law students as faculty for the National Institute of Trial Advocacy, state and county bar associations, and law schools of the University of Washington, where he went to as an undergraduate, and Seattle University, where he went to law school. He was trained to mediate disputes by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, and the University of Washington. He was a U.S. District Court local rule 39.1 mediator, and he has mediated cases pro bono and for private pay. He has also served as a pro tempore judge in municipal and district courts and arbitrator for superior court. Mr. Rocke, a former U.S. Army sergeant, trained military lawyers stationed locally on Washington law relevant to servicemembers and their families.
