SPEAKER BIOGRAPHY:

Charles R. "Chuck" Wolfe, Charles R. Wolfe, Attorney at Law – Chuck Wolfe is Principal at Charles R. Wolfe, Attorney at Law, which he founded in 2005 after a 20-year career at large law firms in Washington State and Connecticut. He provides a unique perspective about cities as both a long time writer about urbanism worldwide and an attorney in Seattle, where he focuses on land use and environmental law and permitting. In particular, his work involves redevelopment counseling and negotiation, brownfield revitalization and the use of innovative land use regulatory tools on behalf of both the private and public sectors. He is also an Affiliate Associate Professor in the College of Built Environments at the University of Washington, where he teaches land use law at the graduate level. His latest book, Seeing the Better City, was published by Island Press in late 2016, and his first book, Urbanism Without Effort, was published by Island Press in 2013. He also contributes regularly to several publications, including Planetizen, CityLab/The Atlantic Cities, The Atlantic, The Huffington Post, Grist, seattlepi.com, and Crosscut.com. He blogs at myurbanist.com. Chuck recently completed speaking tours in Scotland and Australia, and delivered several keynote speeches nationally and locally in from 2013-2015. He has served both as chair of the Washington State Bar Association Environmental and Land Use Section, and, nationally, as Chair of the American Planning Association’s Planning and Law Division. He is currently on the Board of Directors of Futurewise and has held several leadership positions with the Northwest District Council of the Urban Land Institute.
